A house is a machine for living in — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and this...the very intelligence of the machine itself...and this intelligence will be as astonishingly simple co-...and the human telephone will be as simple to use and answer...and he will be able to call on the machine and the machine will tell him in a voice... — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

A house is a machine for living in — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and this...the very intelligence of the machine itself...and this intelligence will be as astonishingly simple co-...and the human telephone will be as simple to use and answer...and he will be able to call on the machine and the machine will tell him in a voice... — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.

"When wireless perfectly applied will be converted into a huge brain, which in fact it is, all things particles of a real...and..." — Nikola Tesla, in an interview with the Spectator journal.

"A house is a machine for living in." — Le Corbusier, in his essay collection Vers Une Architecture.